

Neglect Critical Element Pathway

CMS-20130 â Use to investigate concerns of neglect of a resident

Observations

Observe the resident and the care environment across various shifts.

Are staff providing care and supervision consistent with the resident's assessed needs and care plan?

Is the resident clean, well-groomed, and free of avoidable pressure injuries or odors?

Are call lights answered timely and within reach of the resident?

Is adaptive equipment (e.g., mobility devices, hearing aids) available and in working order?

Interviews

Interview the resident, representative, and staff.

Does the resident state that staff respond to requests for assistance in a timely manner?

Does the resident receive assistance with eating, drinking, toileting, and hygiene when needed?

Do staff describe how they identify and report changes in the resident's condition?

Did the facility investigate and report allegations of neglect per policy?

Record Review

Review the medical record, incident reports, and facility investigation.

Does the care plan address the resident's assessed needs with measurable interventions?

Were physician orders and treatments implemented as ordered?

Is there documentation that the facility monitored and reassessed the resident after incidents?

Did the facility complete a thorough investigation of the alleged neglect within required timeframes?

Critical Element Decisions

Did the facility ensure the resident was free from neglect (F600)?

If the facility failed to provide goods and services necessary to avoid physical harm, cite F600.

If concerns relate to infection prevention practices, initiate the Infection Control Critical Element Pathway.

If systemic staffing concerns are identified, review Sufficient and Competent Staffing.
